

What was a time you
almost let one of these relationships go?

What did you have to give up to maintain
these connections?

Who do you think you would have been without
these connections?

